MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director of Training

FROM: Chief, Editorial and Reproduction Section/ISS

SUBJECT: [REDACTED]

25X1C

25X1C

1. Personnel of the Editorial and Reproduction Section/ISS/OTR have completed the editing of the original text of [REDACTED]

25X1C

[REDACTED]. (Outline of original is Attachment A.) The text is to be reproduced in multiple copies (50) by this Section. All copies are to be returned to the author, Mr. [REDACTED] who will distribute the text. It is understood that the initial distribution of the publication is for review and critique by each recipient, in anticipation of its use in training programs within the Agency.

2. The editors of Mr. [REDACTED] original text exercised the basic prerogatives of their positions. Fundamental rules of grammar were applied, consistency of format was established, documentation checked and corrected, security preserved, and faithfulness to the author's intended meaning was maintained.

3. The current editing was limited by the fact that the background or the reading level of the customer was not known to the editors. Consequently, the author's free, unsophisticated style was not disturbed to any great degree.

4. The author has stated in the preface that this is not intended to be a definitive work, that it "would be impossible to take into account all aspects of the manifold problems involved or to quote all examples of [REDACTED] and their activities." Much significant information is contained in the development of the thesis, and valuable conclusions have been drawn for the reader. The work evidences knowledge, research and a sincere interest on the part of the author. However, with permission, an improvement could be made to include a revision of the original text. (See Attachment B.) This change would eliminate some of the duplication and improve the over-all sequence. There are many statistics which tend to dull the reader's immediate interest. Many of these could be referenced and tabulated in an appendix. An index and bibliography are requisites. The accuracy of an index however, cannot be guaranteed until approval for final reproduction has been given.
